

We Can Offer Training in Your Jurisdiction
Best Practices: Immigrant Crime Victims, Language Access and the U Visa

NIWAP provides free training on the use of the U and T visa and crime scene language access best practices to improve law enforcement's and prosecutors' work with immigrant and limited English proficient (LEP) victims of domestic violence, sexual assault, and human trafficking.

The U and T Visas were created as a crime fighting tools that remove the fear of deportation and encourages immigrant crime victims to report crime victimization to police and participate in criminal investigations and prosecutions. Provision of language access to police assistance at crime scenes results in improved accuracy of police reports, better crime scene investigations and more successful prosecutions. This training will discuss how providing qualified interpreters at crime scenes and U visa certification play crucial roles in improving community, victim and law enforcement officer safety. Attendees will build their skills for effective use of the U visa and provision of language access when working with immigrant and Limited English Proficient victims and witnesses and to improve community policing in immigrant communities.

This training is funded by the U.S. Department of Justice, Office on Violence Against Women (OVW), and will review the use of innovative approaches that assist law enforcement and prosecutors in using the U visa and language access as vital crime fighting tools to hold perpetrators accountable for violent crimes.

The training faculty may include the following:

- Investigator Michael LaRiviere, Salem Police Department
- Sgt. Inspector Antonio Flores, San Francisco Police Department
- Detective Shelli Sonnenberg Wardle, Boise Police Department
- Detective Stacie Ivie, Alexandria Police Department
- Jane Anderson, (Former Miami Prosecutor, Aequitas
- Other members of our law enforcement and prosecutor team
- Leslye Orloff, Director, National Immigrant Women's Advocacy Project, American University Washington College of Law
- Rocío Molina, Assistant Director, National Immigrant Women's Advocacy Project, American University Washington College of Law
- Edna Yang, American Gateways

The faculty consists of experts on violence against immigrant victims of crime who train nationally on the U and T visas and language access as tools to assist law enforcement in the detection and investigation of crimes committed against immigrant victims in their communities, including crimes such as domestic violence, sexual assault, and human trafficking. All attendees will receive training materials on best practices for language access at crime scene investigations, a U visa tool kit, and other valuable screening tools and materials.
